

School Case Study – Clifton Primary School

Rachel Wilkes is the head teacher at Clifton Primary, a school which has been involved with the Hull Children's University for a number of years now. Hundreds of children at Clifton Primary have benefitted from seeing the world beyond the boundaries of the city through the opportunities available through the charity.

What Rachel really likes about working with the charity is that Hull Children's University understands that for children to learn effectively they need to see and experience things for themselves. By creating learning opportunities that inspire and motivate children, the charity which broaden their horizons and helps them to see the possibilities that are open to them in life. To add to this, all of the tutors and volunteers on the trips are enthusiastic, knowledgeable and excellent role models for children.

Pupils at Clifton Primary are always overwhelmingly positive about the experiences they participate in through the Hull Children's University. Rachel would highly recommend getting involved with the Hull Children's University to any other schools saying that helping to give children memories that will last a lifetime is a pleasure and a privilege.
